COUNTRY CLUB OVAL AN IDEAL STAGE FOR INTERNATIONAL POLO

Beautiful Setting at Bala Enhances the Exciting Scenes as All-Ireland and Orange County Clash in Stirring Battle-Victory for Americans

THE biggest international pelo tournament that Philadelphia has seen in ages opened at the Philadelphia Country Club yesterday, when the Orange County four defeated the gentlemen riders of the All-Ireland Polo Club, 12

The match was played on a perfect sward of green velvet under a sun that was bright as C'eapatra's eyes. Overhead, the sky, pair as a robin's egg at morn, deepened to a toyal blue, untouched by the argent splender of a single cloud

Picture the beauty of that field at Rain. Four hundred yards of grassy turf, touched off by the startling white elubhouse and the spiky rows of fence palings; behind it rising the hally links of the Country Club. A solid row of glittering and expensive cars. Femilians becare in colorful gowns. The wivid colors of the players Most of the experts were in accord with the statement that in the Bala

How Does It Strike You?

Alonso's Popularity Initiative

THE OBSERVER

C. Mack's Wish OF ALL the foreign athletes who have invaded America, it is doubtful if any attained the popularity Manuel Alonso, Spanish tennis player, is now

The reasons are evident every time the Latin exhibits at Manheim. He is brilliant, spectacular, skilled, game and a thorough sportsman. What more could be asked of an athlete? Yesterday Alonso eliminated Watson Washburn in five of the most fascinating sets ever seen at Germantown and the Manheim courts have the scene of many a thrilling match. What a tribute was paid the Spaniard as he sprinted out of the inclosure at the completion of his triumph! There was not only a thunder of hand claps but cheers and it is seldom tennis enthusiasts are aroused to cheering.

Not only is the Spaniard popular with the crowd, but the ball boys! they idolize him. A few days ago a bit of a shaver came up to the Latin and with tears in his eyes he told him he would not be able to serve him that day. "Never mind," said Alonso, "I'll see if I can not have you tomorrow." And did he? Well, if you noticed that blond-haired youngater who was gathering balls on the north side during the match, you glimpsed the Spaniard's pal. Alonso saw the eagerness of the boy and his efficiency in getting the fallen balls quickly and he asked if he might be permitted to serve him.

The Latin has taken the boy into his heart and has encouraged him. In the years to come, the wee chap will never forget the brilliant Spaniard. Perhaps we are wrong, but it is yet to be disproved to us that the man who loves children loves all things clean and is clean himself. Manuel Alonso is great beyond his tennis.

THE girls are giving up short skirts and the men are forsaking long I trousers, judging from Manheim styles. One official yesterday wore a suit of white duck or something like that, consisting of a rather long coat and knickers.

Initiative in Sports

MET Clarence Goldsmith last night and chatted with him for a few minutes. As usual he gave us something to think about. Clarence, you recall, used to coach the University of Pennsylvania lacrosse eam and there are few better tutors of the old Indian game in the country,

He has some sound ideas that apply to any sport. Initiative was his subject last night and it concerned some athletes at the University. He had this to say: "Give me men who will occasionally stray from set teachings and will take chance. A coach attempts to cover, in his lectures, every possible play or wist a game may take, but he can't cover them all. "A man must think for himself and act accordingly. The man in the play must be able to judge best his own actions. "I would rather see an athlete make a few mistakes in taking the initiative and profit thereby than to follow in the rut of things told him."

His words are sound logic. We can seek and find advice, but the same thought rarely fits two cases. We must solve and plan our own attack and defense without interfering with teamwork or the general scheme of things. AL SHRUBB was one of the greatest distance runners of all time and he left a string of records a yard long behind him when he passed out of competition. Many believed they would never be equaled, but one was beaten yesterday by Paave Nurmi, a Finnish runner. Time and progress erase everything. Mack May Get His Wish

N THE early part of the season, the Washington Club was going poorly and the Mackmen took three out of four games down at the Capital. Connie was moved to comment in the general discussion concerning the sibility of the Senators flivving on the season's record. "They have a good club," said Mack. "Make no mistake about that, this year and I'll be satisfied." Take a glance at the percentage tables. Washington is sixth and the A's are in seventh place. It is very likely that the clubs will finish that way. Mack may get his wish, but it doesn't carry the glory he thought it would, Wonder if Connie is satisfied?

They will get started later. To tell the truth, just let me finish behind them
